Supporting Roles

Have you ever heard of Hur? "Didn't you mean to say, 'Haven't you heard of her?'" No, I meant to say, "Hur." He is one of the great "supporting roles" in the Bible. Literally!

In Exodus 17, Amalek came to fight against Israel. The plan for the Israelites involved many people in several different roles. There was Moses, the fearless leader of the Israelites and spokesman for God. Not only did he inform of the plan (v.9), it was his hands that, when raised, allowed Israel to prevail (v.11). There was also Joshua, the leader of the armed forces who mounted the charge into battle (vv.9-10, 13).

Alongside Joshua were the men chosen to fight. We do not know their names. However, we can appreciate their courage and valour.

There are also two more individuals in the account. Aaron and Hur are the unsung heroes - the supporting roles - of the battle. They had the grand task of holding up Moses' hands. As long as Moses keeps his arms and staff in the air, Israel wins. They fall, and Israel loses.

The vital lesson for us is that everyone can contribute because everyone can be a Hur!

There are things for you to do that are just as vital, important, and necessary.

How can you be a Hur?

- Make a phone call to the person that hasn't been attending.
- Send a card to encourage a missionary or preacher, or to lift someone who is sick or sorrowful.
- Make a meal for a shut-in.
- Make it a point to welcome all the visitors at each service.
- Invite an elder and his family over for Sunday lunch.
- Pray for your pastor
